

Meetings Actually: Turning Conversations

PRESENTED BY [YOUR NAME]

The Real Problem

FOLLOW THROUGH ISSUES

Priya, a consultant, emphasizes the importance of effective follow-through. She notes that the meetings themselves aren't typically broken; instead, the lack of execution afterward is the real problem. To achieve outcomes, focus on accountability and commitment beyond the meeting.

The Value Leakage Challenge

FROM DISCUSSION TO ACTION

- Value is created live in meetings.
 - The transition to action often falters.
 - Handover from talking to doing is crucial.
 - Without follow-through, discussions may become meaningless.

Three Quiet Failures

THE URGENCY FADES

- Memory fades over time
- Ownership blurs between team members
- Momentum cools, leading to inaction
- These failures occur gradually, diminishing the impact of decisions made during meetings, resulting in missed opportunities for effective follow-through and action.

Notes Are Not the Fix

DRIVING ACTION MATTERS

- Better notes help but do not drive action
 - A page of notes without owners is just an archive
 - Capture intentions to ensure follow-through
 - Ownership and dates are essential for progress

Key Questions Before Booking a Meeting

To ensure productive discussions, always ask: Does this need a conversation? What must be decided? Who will follow through? Focus on outcomes.

Essential Conversations Must Drive Real Outcomes

Some meetings are unavoidable, yet their effectiveness hinges on capturing decisions and actions to ensure meaningful follow-through and accountability.

The Essential Habit of Decision Ownership

Every decision must include a clear owner, due date, and reason why it matters, ensuring accountability and focus for effective outcomes.

Practical Example of Decision Capture

Concise Follow-Ups: Capture Decisions Quickly

Sending a summary within the hour ensures decisions stay fresh. This practice fosters accountability and propels action towards achieving meeting outcomes.

Capture Decisions and Actions Effectively

Utilize capture-agnostic tools to streamline the drafting of decisions and actions, ensuring you're always in control of the process and outcomes.

The Meeting Is Not The Deliverable

FOCUS ON FOLLOW-THROUGH

- Meetings are merely starting points.
- The real impact happens through implementation.
- Emphasizing follow-through ensures decisions translate into action.
- A successful meeting leads to meaningful outcomes.
- Continuously drive progress beyond the initial discussion.
